Free website template for photography portfolio

When you want to view your work and the work experiences you've had, the old way to do that is to create a portfolio brochure. For a new school version, create an online portfolio instead. A basic website can be used as a forum to view your resume, work examples, customer testimonials, and more. If you're looking to create an amazing presentation in no time, you can use PowerPoint templates for free, although it's limited in terms of creative designs. You can find a wide variety of free PowerPoint templates online that can bring more to your work. Simply download the ones you want, open them in PowerPoint, and edit them any way you want to suit your needs. Here's a collection of websites from which you can get the best free PowerPoint templates and create amazing presentations. Best Websites for Magazine Presentations PowerPoint Templates FreeShow Template CollectionToday Slide Template CollectionShows Slide Patterns Carnival24Slides Free-PPT-Templates.comSlide Hunterfppt.com Presentation Magazine This website offers more than 67,000 creative and free PowerPoint templates. It has more than a dozen categories to browse such as medical, business, nature, educational, wedding, architectural, Christmas, travel and weather. You can search for them by popularity, color, or tag. The templates are normal and animated, and are added or updated frequently. They are also easy to download when you get the file instantly on your computer, plus you get to see a screenshot of how they will look on your slide deck. There is no rating system though, and most templates are very basic, but at least you have a wide variety to choose from. Behance Slide Template Collection Behance is a display site for creators from all over the world, so you must find some really professionally designed, artistic and very attractive slide formats. The best part is that you can get creative PowerPoint templates, download for free, and use it with a PowerPoint presentation. You can use the search filter to find some of the best formats that you can use by using variables such as user ratings, highly valued, or categories such as an infographic or business presentation, and more. A preview of the template's slide designs is also available, so you can see how your deck will look before you download it. If you plan to get templates from Behance, you'll also need access to Illustrator or Photoshop. PowerPoint PowerPoint Styles also offer free PowerPoint templates, and you can find templates that suit your needs by sorting the list according to the most floating, recently added, or recently downloaded formats. It also provides categories and tags to help you find general templates, or cartoons, abstract, social, textures, telecommunications, and other types of templates. Each template has a screenshot so you can get a sneak peek of the look of the design itself, and they'll be downloaded as PowerPoint files. It's easy to add to your presentation. You can also choose any color you want to see the patterns with your preferred color as the primary color, which is good if you're building a slide deck for your brand. The main drawbacks of this site is the ads on the site that make it difficult to find the appropriate download button for the template you want. Showeet Showeet presents powerpoint templates for free with lots of information about each, and you can browse the popular templates by tags such as fun, business, template, and more. Each download page also comes with preview images, plus instructions and tips on how to use the template and make it interactive. They're also updated and added periodically, but you need to follow them on social media or subscribe to RSS to get updates on their latest template designs. The main drawbacks are that each template is stored in a ZIP file, so you must extract the files before using them in the presentation. Google Slides Google Slides Templates Google Slides are stylish and royalty, so you can use them when you have up close presentations and you're pressed for time, so you can't design your own from scratch. You do not need to fill out a registration form to use the PowerPoint templates for free on this site. Plus, you get useful links that can help you if you're new to creating presentations on Google Slides, or haven't used them in a long time. Carnival Slides for low budget projects, Carnival Slides is a great site to get free PowerPoint and Google slide templates. You can use theme-based menus on a site to search for templates, browse the latest themes, type a keyword in the search bar, or sort between the well-defined categories. The site also offers supporting material with information that explains why the templates work well so you can make a better decision. 24Slides This website makes finding a free PowerPoint template much easier because it's clutter free and there's no ads. The templates are professionally designed, clean and easy to find because they organize them by category, offered or very popular, although they can also be filtered by creative or company. You also get to preview screenshots, which make it easier to narrow down your options. You do not need to extract the downloads from the ZIP folder when downloading directly, and are stored in PPTX format before you can use them in your presentation. However, you need a user account to download the templates, and it has fewer categories to search for. Free-PPT-Templates.com website for free PowerPoint templates offers professional templates in categories such as music, technology, education, medicine and countries. You can filter them by editor's choice, top 10, or highest popularity, although their search filters aren't intuitive. Another disadvantage of this site is that the PowerPoint templates you download are stored in archives, not directly as PPTX files for quick and easy use with your presentation. Slide Hunter Slide Hunter Free PowerPoint templates under various topics, including strategy, education, planning, charts, recycling, 3D, darts, and more. Some offer multiple screenshots so you can see what you're about to download, plus related templates you can choose. However, you must extract the templates from a ZIP file before using them in the presentation, and there is no content description or information about the number or length of the slide show. fppt.com this popular site for free PowerPoint templates shares a massive collection of professional templates in various categories such as wedding, business, religious, graduation, nature and abstract. You can easily find a template that suits your needs by filtering searches by category, keyword, tags, topics, or backgrounds. You can see user comments and download counts on the download pages so you can decide whether you want to get a specific template that drank in the style you like. In addition, you do not need to register or wait exemplary before downloading during download immediately to your device. However, some templates can be large and last for a while, and there aren't enough screenshots to show you more information about the template you're downloading. Get your next presentation template We've highlighted only 10 sites from which you can get free PowerPoint templates, but there are many other options out there. However, you can get a wide variety of designs for different purposes so you can impress your audience, and win this task or land your next customer. We'd love to hear your recommendations for great websites from which you get free PowerPoint templates. Share a comment below. Skip to the top headlineJaf to the main contentSkip footerScore the ruins of our portfolios in the new year, consider this: You can beat the vast majority of investment experts by using simple strategies that use low-cost index funds. Index funds track much of the stock market, such as large corporate stocks, small-company stocks, stocks in emerging markets, and so on. Some of the world's greatest finance minds - from Nobel Prize-winning professors, like William F. Sharpe, to, arguably, the greatest finance director of our time, Warren Buffett - support a passive style of investing in index funds. The evidence seems to back up these heavy intellectuals. In the 15 years to December 31, the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index performed better than the 71% stake in mutual funds specializing in the shares of major U.S. companies. How well did you do by choosing managers who actively buy and sell securities? It's true that some managers can beat their relevant metric. But as Princeton's Professor Burton Malkiel argues in his famous book, Random Walk Street Walk, there's no good way to find such skill before it's shown over time. Building a simple portfolio based on index funds is, well, simple. You can find my edging on Funds in three winning investment portfolios. But we thought it would be interesting to ask some of the champions of low-cost easy investment to offer their own portfolios. So we open the corner of The New York's Kiplinger.com with recommendations from three experts. Our request was simple: balanced, low-cost portfolios, with no more than eight investments, for people investing for the long term. We're not fanatics about our guidelines; We have allowed our experts to use actively managed funds as well as index funds. They filed their portfolios in December 2008, and we decided to start monitoring performance as of January 1, 2009. We rebalance the portfolios twice a year, on the last day of June and the last day of December. The first is Malari Swedroe, director of research for St. Louis-based Buckingham Asset Management, and author of a number of useful books, including The Successful Investor Today and the only guide to a winning investment strategy you ever need. Swedroe didn't moss words. The belief in active management is absurd, he says, calling it the triumph of hope over wisdom and experience. The smart investor knows that some coaches will beat the indices every now and then, but when that happens, says Sodro, it's totally unlucky. Swedroe's simple portfolio reflects these sentiments, as well as the tendency of value stocks and shares of small companies to do better than other stocks over time. Swedroe Portfolio: 15% Vanguard Value Index (VIVAX logo) (tracks index of undervalued stocks from the 750 largest U.S. companies)15% Vanguard Small Valuation Index (VISVX) (tracks index of small shares, 13% iShares MSCI EAFE Value Index (tracks stock index of large, undervalued foreign companies)13% iShares MSCI EAFE Small Cap Index (tracks small-company stock index in sand)4% Vanguard Emerging Markets Stock Index (VEIEX) (tracks corporate stock index Small in the sand)4% Vanguard Emerging Markets Stock Index (VEIEX) (tracks small companies' stock index in the sand)4% Vanguard Emerging Markets Stock Index (tracks small companies' stock index in the sand)4% Vanguard Emerging Markets Stock Index (tracks small companies' stock index in sand)4% Vanguard Emerging Markets Stock Index (tracks small companies' stock index in sand) Index of companies from developing countries)40% Vanguard Inflation Protected Securities (VIPSX) (invests at least 80% of assets in inflation-index bonds issued by the U.S. government)The next is the portfolio of Princeton Professor Barton Malkiel, whose latest song (with three co-authors) is from Wall Street to the Great Wall: How Investors Can Profit From China's Thriving Economy In Malkiel's view, managers in developed markets will struggle to beat their metrics over time. So he has most of his portfolio assets in index funds. And Lakiel keeps most assets in foreign stocks because, he says, foreign markets offer better growth opportunities than the U.S. does. While most of his portfolio consists of passively managed funds and stock exchange-traded experiences, which also track indices, Lakiel also has shares in actively managed funds. (In fact, this portfolio represents its actual investments.) He owns Vanguard Capital Opportunities because of his tremendous respect for executives at Primecap Management, who run To Vanguard. Malkiel, a former director at Vanguard Group, says he feels he can bet primecap's expertise because the core of his portfolio is in index funds. More interesting are his choices of Templeton Dragon and Matthew's India, both of which are actively managed. I believe that of all the places in the world, China and India are the two that have the highest growth rates, says Malkiel. Templeton Dragon, a closed fund focused on Chinese stocks, is managed by emerging markets veteran Hand Mark Movius. Although Lakiel isn't sure Movius can beat the relevant metric, he thinks Movius is an excellent manager. If I can buy Mark Movius for 85 cents on the dollar, I'd love to do it. On January 16, the closing price of $16.52, Templeton Dragon sold for 6.9% less than the value of its underlying assets. Malkiel says there aren't many good ways to play in India, and if there was a good closed India fund trading at a discount on its net asset value, he would buy it. For now, he'll take Matthew's foundation. Lkief ETF: 20% Vanguard Total Stock Market (tracks a broad index of U.S. companies)20% Vanguard FTSE All World Former (tracks a broad index of stocks from developed and developing foreign markets.) Vanguard Total Market Agach ETF (BND) (tracks a broad index of high quality in the U.S. Ag)10% Vanguard Capital Opportunities (VHCOX) (actively managed fund that likes big growth companies down on their luck)10% Vanguard Emerging Markets (tracks index of developing stocks countries)10% Templeton Dragon (TDF) (stock investor) From China and nearby countries)10% India's Matthew (MINDX)(investing in shares from India)Given the interest in fixed income investment (and the fear and loathing around the stock market these days), we were also looking for a stockless portfolio. William Larkin, fixed-income portfolio manager at Cabot Money Management in Cylem, Massachusetts, says his portfolio was originally designed for conservative clients who wanted conservative investments. However, these days he finds that many clients who have not previously considered themselves conservatives are now interested in investing only in fixed income. This portfolio represents all parts of the fixed income market at the lowest possible cost, he says, and recently yielded 6.3%. It also has a healthy slug of inflation protection, which is particularly reassuring given all the money printed for various government incentive and rescue programs around the world. Larkin's portfolio: 25% iShares Barclays Aggregation (tracks broad U.S. qualitative index.
